6 Things to Do Right Now

1 PRETTY POLISH
 Get a fantastic 15-minute mani or 20-minute pedi while you shop. LAKA manicure recently debuted its first United States outpost at Premium Outlets right here in Las Vegas. But last month their speedy treatments got more Strip-centric when they set up shop with a new kiosk at Fashion Show. Feel free to browse through all 150 of the brand's shades of nail lacquer—you've got time. $14, Fashion Show; lakamanicure.com

2 SHRIMP + TOAST = YUM!
 Together, the words "shrimp toast" don't make sense, but at Fat Choy, chef Sheridan Su is trying to expand our horizons. Minced shrimp is mixed with a bit of lap cheong (or Chinese sausage) and drizzled with sriracha aioli and hoisin sauce, all atop a piece of toast. And then that bad boy is layered with a fried egg. It's like an East meets West breakfast snack gone right. $8, Eureka Casino, 702.794.3464; FatChoyLV.com

3 TWO WRONGS, OH SO RIGHT
 Dos Caminos, the modern Mexican restaurant in Summerlin, has taken the two best fats in the world and made them into a dip with pickled jalapeños to stab some heat and acidity into richness. Everyone knows the saturated fats of bacon and chicharron are canceled out by the monosaturated variety of the avocado. And if that's not true, after a bite, you really won't care. $10, 10820 W. Charleston Blvd., 702.462.8800; doscaminos.com

4 ICE CREAM, YOU SCREAM
 Springs Preserve screams for its annual cool-treat extravaganza, where families are invited to enjoy face painting, bingo, pony rides, live music and a beautiful day outdoors. And ice cream. Lots and lots of ice cream. May 11, 11-4 p.m.; $8 adults, $6 children 5-12, 4 and under free, 333 S. Valley View Blvd., 702.822.770; springspreserve.org

5 HUNGER. AGAIN.
 The Wolfpack's latest adventure brings them back to where it all began. This final installation of the comedy comes out May 24, and there's no better place to watch The Hangover Part III—and quite possibly live it—than in Sin City itself. For more information on how to induce your own hangover this holiday weekend, check out our Memorial Day Weekend guide on Page 85. For some Chow fun, catch up with Ken Jeong on Page 68.

6 PUFF DADDY
 Tucked into the corner of The Forum Shops at Caesars, the Casa Fuente cigar lounge is one of the few places where you can light up a stogie in peace. Celebrating 100 years, the Fuente family released its newest cigar wrapped in a sun-grown Ecuadorian wrapper. Inside you'll find Château de la Fuente filler and even some tobacco from the Fuentes' secret stash. The Forum Shops at Caesars, 702.731.5051; cigarfamily.com
